

Bulgari Unveils its Peter Marino Designed Bal Harbour Boutique

Monday, December 8, 2014, by Ashley Brozic

Bulgari reopened its Bal Harbour boutique last week for Art Basel, and it's quite fabulous. Like Roman palace fabulous. The store is divided into sections to guide you through sections of extravagant fine jewelry, structured purses, sleek eyewear, and more.

This is the brand's first North American boutique to feature a new architectural design concept by Peter Marino, a legendary retail architect who touts Chanel, Barney's, Louis Vuitton and so many more as his former clients. He also only wears leather motorcycle getups, owns six motorcycles, and supposedly revamped Andy Warhol's townhouse back in the day, but there's some doubt to that. Click through for the full gallery of this new Bal Harbour staple, and let us know what you think in the comments.
